Poetry.

Those who have traveled much by rail-car, will appreciate the following effusion, which appeared originally in the Missouri Democrat, from the pen of a lady, Mrs. F. D. Gage:—

Sitting in a rail-car, flying on by steam,
Head against the casement, dreamed a curious dream;

Yet I could not think it all a thing ideal,
For though very monstrous, it was very real.

First there came a gentleman in patent leather,
Collar, bosom, wristbands, Raglan, for the weather;

In the height of fashion, watch-key, hat and glove,
And with air professional, spit upon the stove.

Near him sat a parson, telling how the Lord
Sent the great revivals, blessed the preached word;

But my dream discovered he was not above
Honey-dew or fine-cut, spitting on the stove.

Next came in a trader, pockets full of cash,
Talked about the country going all to smash;

"Twas the women's dressing did the thing, by Jove!"
Sipped a little brandy, spit upon the stove.

Then a jolly farmer, bragging of his wheat,
Thought his hogs and horses nowhere could be beat;

Like to sell his Durhams by the head or drove,
Kept his jaws a wagging, spit upon the stove.

Paddy thought 'twas "quare like, to be sitting still,
All the whilst agoin' over bog and hill;"

"'Twas a glorious counthry, sure," as he could prove,
Equal to his betters, spitting on the stove.

Witless, perfumed dandy, putting on his airs,
Flourish'd diamond breastpin, smoked in forward car;

Talked about Lamoreaux, "such a perfect love,"
Twirl'd a carrot moustache, spit upon the stove.

Little boy in short coat, wants to be a man,
Following example as the surest plan;

Watches gent and parson, copies every move,
And with Pat and trader spits upon the stove.

Soon the flying rail-car reeks with nauseous steam,
Ladies almost fainting, children in a scream;

Husband asking lady—"What's the matter love?
Have a glass of water?"—spits upon the stove.

On we go still flying, not a breath of air,
Fit for Christian people, in that crowded car;

Sickening, fainting, dying, ladies make a move
Gent throws up the window, spits upon the stove.

Now, perchance, this dreaming was not all a dream;
Think I've had a steaming, travelling by steam;

'Tis a public nuisance, any one can prove,
"All the air corrupting—spitting on the stove."

Talk of ladies flounces, ribbons, jewels, flowers,
Crinolines and perfumes, gossip, idle hours,

Put all faults together, which man can't approve,
And they're not a match for—spitting on the stove.

From the Philadelphia U. S. Gazette.

HYMN FOR THE TIMES.

Thy blessing, gracious Providence,
If thou to man reveal—
The manufacturer plies his art
And commerce speeds the wheel.
On skill to plan, and toil to frame,
If thou thy smile bestow,
The vein is reached, and streams of gold
Run in perpetual flow.

How rise the airy structures then!
What wings doth bustle wear!
We strive as if this world alone
Were worth a world of care.
To heaven-exalted enterprise
Our fealty we give—
For wealth, and what it brings, life seems
Worthy, alone, to live.

But when thy frown appears, the tide
Rolls back with angry power;
And then, O God, what dreams of pride,
Years built die in an hour!
How strangely vanish yellow heaps
Which painful toil has raised,
How frightful is the labyrinth, then,
Where wisdom's self is mazed.

If in the mighty gulf is whelmed
One who has bowed to pelf,
Or one whose narrow purposes
Have centred in himself,—
By this sharp trial show to him,
Perhaps a lesson new—
That he alone lives up to Man,
Who lives for others too.

And if thy finger him has touched,
The fairest prospect striven—
Who as thine almoner, dispersed
Thy gifts as dews of heaven—
His noble heart, which was not wed
To these, do thou refine;
And by this kind rebuke, make
Yet more thy servant thine.

O! it is merciful that thus
Thy chastening hand it felt,
When we, departing from thy shrine,
Have to our idols knelt,
Then let this call, so loud, so stern,
Which our whole nation hears—
Now sweetly win us to return
In penitence and tears.

THE SUN THAT WARMS.

The sun that warms the fading flower,
May cheer, not change its doom;
May stay its late with one brief hour,
But ne'er restore its bloom!
So when the withered heart receives
The light of love too late,
Its charms awhile the wreck relieves,
But cannot change its fate!

Agriculture.

"RHODE ISLAND PREMIUM CORN"—We have taken some little pains to ascertain the facts concerning this new variety of corn, which is so deservedly popular wherever it has been tried. It is a hybrid variety, produced by a scientific mixture of the large yellow cap corn, the early Canada, and a very prolific variety of the red corn, securing the valuable qualities of each for the new species. Thus the large yellow gives size, the Canada the early ripening, and the red, the numerous ears upon a single stalk. The color is light red, or what is termed "flesh color,"—the cob is the smallest of any known variety—the stalk bearing from one to six and even nine ears to the single stalk—is less than medium height—and the shelled corn weighs the heaviest of any kind, from sixty to sixty-four pounds per bushel. The yield per acre ranges from sixty to one hundred and fifteen bushels of shelled corn. Mr. Thomas Andrews, the originator of this kind of corn, whose letters to the Rhode Island Agricultural Society upon the subject of mixture and improvement, giving details of his experiments for the past ten or fifteen years, have been of such general interest, and have had so wide a circulation through the agricultural press—exceeded one hundred and fifteen bushels to the acre, for which he received the State premium. Rev. A. Tyler, of Granby, Connecticut, year before last, with the most ordinary attention, had a crop of one hundred and five bushels to the acre. Last year, although the season was unfavorable to this species of grain, the crops through the State of Connecticut of this species of corn ranged from sixty to eighty bushels.

The demand for the seed is unprecedented, and we know not that it is to be had in this city. Those who are anxious to try the variety can send to Mr Andrews, whose post office address is Slatersville, R. I., forwarding the price, $2 per bushel. If this variety be as it is represented, it will be a most valuable addition to the number of kinds now cultivated.—Exchange.

TESTING SEED CORN.—There is so much damaged corn this year, much care will be requisite in selecting such as is suitable for seed. I have seen in your paper and elsewhere, several modes suggested for testing its germinating qualities, but they are inefficient, impracticable, or attended with too much trouble to be generally useful. The following mode will be found simple, practicable, and certain, and can be applied to any extent desired. Put the shelled corn in a vessel or vessels of such dimensions as are required for the quantity to be tested. Pour water over it of about the temperature of milk from the cow, until it is fully covered, adding to the water, from time to time, if the absorption and swelling of the corn should raise it above the surface. Set it in a moderately warm place and let it remain twenty-four hours. Then pour the water off, cover the corn with some thick cloth, which must be kept wet, and let it stand in a mass, still in a warm place, until it sprouts.—This will take place in from thirty-six to forty eight hours, usually, if the corn is good.—Exchange.

COLIC IN SHEEP.—We find in an English paper the following remedy for colic in sheep:—"I have a number of sheep feeding on Swedish turnips with cut hay. An unusual number have been attacked with colic, and every case proving fatal, I determined to try the following remedy:—'Ten drops of laudanum, ten drops of essence of peppermint, one teaspoonful of the spirits of turpentine, and one tablespoonful of sweet oil.' I have in no instance found this to fail to produce a cure within a couple of hours, although the sheep have been perfectly paralysed, and unable to stand."

TO PREVENT MILK WASTING FROM THE TEATS OF COWS.—Get from the druggist a small quantity of collodion, or "liquid cuticle;" and when the cow has been milked, apply it to the end of the teats. It instantly will form a thin, tough skin, which will close the orifice and prevent the emission of the milk. At milking time the false skin can be broken through, and the cow milked, and the collodion again applied. In a week or ten days there will be no necessity for further application, as the defect will be cured.

Country Gentleman.

LIVE AND DEAD WEIGHT OF SHEEP.—The English rule to ascertain the dead weight of sheep is to divide the live weight by seven and estimate each quarter at one-seventh of the whole. Thus, if a sheep weighed fasting, draws 140 pounds, shows the weight of the four quarters 80 pounds, or 20 pounds each, which is one-seventh of 140. This rule will only hold good in first rate fat sheep. Generally speaking, they will not give more than one-half the live weight.

Miscellaneous.

Assuming the Responsibility.

Some days since while calling upon one of my neighbors, I found the grandmother about to cut her little grandchild's hair, which for some cause, was falling out, and which the good old lady determined to cut in order, as she said, "to thicken its growth."

"It really does seem a pity," said the old lady, as she drew the long, silken ringlets through her fingers, "but what is to be done? We tried everything we could think of, and everything our neighbors told us of, and everything the papers said anything about, and all to no purpose.—The hair keeps coming out, and I do believe that Sophrona will be bald in a month more unless something is done, and that pretty soon. 'See there,' said the old lady,' as she held up a large quantity of hair rolled up into a bunch, 'see there! did you ever see the like?' and the old lady sighed like Shakespeare's lover.

Drawing the comb through the long ringlets, she settled the shears firmly into her fingers, opened wide the blades, and essayed to cut, but somehow the fingers refused to move, her heart died within her and laying down the shears, she looked up with a queer look of diffidence.

"I dare not cut,' said she, 'I am afraid I'll spoil her looks to cut it. Here, child, here's a quarter; go down to Mr. Rath and have him cut your hair quite short. It's no use to try to do what one knows nothing about,' said she, in a moralizing strain. 'Every one to the business he's fitted for;' and she gathered up the stray hairs and burned them, and smoothed down her apron and adjusted her spectacles and resumed her sewing.

'I came in,' said I, 'to have you go in with me to see Mrs. Armstrong's child. I'm not acquainted with her, and don't like to go in alone; but the child is sick, I hear, and I want to be as neighborly as I can to a stranger and a new-comer, so I came to have you go in with me. So, without more ado, in we went, and, after a not very formal introduction, asked after the sick child, and got quite a circumstantial history of the case. It appeared that the child, a fat, little creature, was taken the night before with the croup; the doctor had been sent for and used the usual remedies with a very beneficial effect, and, among other means, had applied the cold wet compress, covered with a dry towel, to the throat, and had directed the vapor of warm water to be inhaled through a sponge wrung out of that liquid.

'La, me,' said the old lady, 'who ever heard of such a thing? Cold water to the neck of a child with the croup! I should think he'd a caught his death of cold. And how is he now?' said she, as she bent over the crib and listened to the child's breathing.

'He got along very finely this morning, but this afternoon he seems a little hoarse,' said the mother, 'and I am anxiously waiting for the doctor. I expect him every minute.'

'Well, you may do as you are a mind to,' said the old lady 'but I'd take off that cold, wet towel, and throw away that sponge. Steaming a child, as I live!—Cold water outside and hot steam inside. Who ever heard of it before?' said she, waxing loud and indignant; and after much talking she persuaded the too credulous mother to give her the charge of the darling. Away went the sponge, and off came the cloth from the child's neck, and mixing up a large cup full of goose oil and molasses, commenced pouring it down the little one's throat.

The child, which up to that time had been resting quietly in his crib, with no fever and not a single unfavorable symptom, except, perhaps, a slight hoarseness, began now to struggle and cry, and in less than half an hour was in a high fever, and unable to utter a loud cry, and was rapidly approaching suffocation. The mother, now thoroughly aroused, wished to send for the doctor, but the old lady said, 'no, as soon as the goose oil and molasses came up, it would bring up the phlegm with it, and the little one would be well.'

And so a precious hour flew by, the child each moment growing rapidly worse, and the old lady pouring down the oil and molasses, until the child's condition grew so desperate that even she was alarmed, and I was dispatched post haste for the doctor. But the doctor was out of the village, and his student did not know where he had gone, and so two hours more were lost before the doctor returned, and by the time he got to the house the little fellow was past all hope, and lingering through the night, died early the next morning.

The mother's anguish was extreme, and I was grieved and indignant at the old lady's folly, and the old lady was very self-complacent with the idea that she had done all she could to save the little child's life, while the doctor's wrath was terrible. He raved and stamped, and poured more invectives on the old woman's head than I had ever heard before in a life time.

And, reader, barring the oaths, I could not but think she deserved it all. She had sat quietly in her own house, and on attempting deliberately to cut her grandchild's hair had failed, because she feared to spoil the little one's looks. Rising up from this exhibition of her weakness, she went into a neighbor's house, assumed the responsibility of casting aside the means directed by a skilful and successful physician, assumed the charge of a case of which she absolutely knew nothing, and committed a downright murder within a few hours from the time when she sent her grandchild to the barber's with the words, 'I's no use to try to do what one knows nothing about; every one to the business he's fitted for.

The Young Musician and his Mother.

The following passages from the life of an English composer, copied from the Boston Olive Branch, will thrill the heart of many a mother, who will read it here, no doubt, for the first time:—

Little Pierre was humming by the bedside of his sick mother. There was no bread in the closet, and for the whole day he had not tasted food. Yet he sat humming to keep up his spirits. Still at times he thought of his loneliness and hunger, and he could scarcely keep the tears from his eyes, for he knew nothing would be so grateful to his poor invalid mother as a good sweet orange, and yet he had not a penny in the world. The little song he was singing was his own—one he had composed with air and words; for the child was a genius, and a fervent worshipper at the shrine of music. As the tears would roll down his cheeks, and his voice would falter at the sad, sad thoughts, he did not dare to let his mother see, but hastily rising, hurried to the window, and there watched a man putting up a great bill, with yellow letters, announcing that Madam M——, then a favorite cantatrice, would sing that night in the Temple.

'Oh, if I could only go,' thought little Pierre; and then pausing a moment, he clasped his hands; his eyes lighted with unwonted fire; and running to the little stand, he smoothed down his yellow curls, and taking from a box some old stained paper, gave one eager glance at his mother, who slept, and ran speedily from the house.

'Who did you say was waiting for me?' said Madam M—— to her servant. 'I am already worn out with company.'

'It's only a very pretty little boy with yellow curls, who says if he could only see you, he is sure you would not be sorry, and he won't keep you a moment.'

'Oh! well, let him come,' said the beautiful singer, with a smile; 'I can never refuse children.'

Little Pierre came in, his hat under his arm, and in his hand a little roll of paper. With a manliness unusual for a child, he bowing, said:

'I came to see you because my mother is very sick, and we are too poor to get food and medicine. I thought that perhaps if you would only sing my little song at some of your grand concerts, maybe some publisher would buy it for a small sum, and so I could get food and medicine for my mother.'

The beautiful woman rose from her seat. Very tall and stately she was; she took the little roll from his hand and lightly hummed the air.

'Did you compose it?' she asked; 'you, a mere child! And the words? Wonderful little genius! Would you like to come to my concert?' she asked, after a few moments of thought.

'Oh, yes!' and the little boy's blue eyes grew liquid with happiness; 'but I couldn't leave my mother.'

'I will send somebody to take care of your mother for the evening, and here is a crown with which to get food and medicine. Here is also one of my tickets; come to-night; that will admit you to a seat near me. My good little fellow, your mother has a treasure in you.'

Almost beside himself with joy, Pierre bought some oranges, and many a little luxury beside, and carried them home to the poor invalid, telling her, not without tears, of his good fortune.

Never in his life had Pierre been in such a grand place. The music, clashing and rolling, the myriad lights, the beauty, the flashing of diamonds and rustling of silks, bewildered his eye and brain.

At last she came—and the child sat with his eyes riveted upon her glorious face. Could he believe that the grand lady, all blazing with jewels, and whom everybody seemed to worship, would really sing his little song? Breathless he waited; the band, the whole band, struck up a little plaintive melody; he knew it, and clapped his hands for joy. And oh, how she sang it! It was so simple, so mournful, so soul-subduing—many a bright eye dimmed with tears, and naught could be heard but the touching words of that little song—oh, so touching! Pierre walked home as if moving on the air. What cared he for money now? The greatest prima donna in all Europe had sung his little song, and thousands had wept at his grief.

The next day he was frightened at a visit from Madame M——. She laid her hands on his yellow curls and turning to the sick woman, said, 'Your little boy, Madame, has brought you a fortune. I was offered this morning, by the best publishers in London, three hundred pounds for his little song; and after he has realized a certain amount for the sale, little Pierre here is to share the profits. Madame, thank God that your son has a gift from Heaven.' The noble hearted singer and the poor woman wept together.

In her early, happy death, when the grave damps gathered over her brow, and her eyes grew dim, he who stood by her bed, his bright face clothed in the mourning of sighs and tears, and smoothed her pillow, and lightened her last moments by his undying affection, was the little Pierre of former days—now rich, accomplished, and the most talented composer of the day—All honor to those great hearts who, from their high stations, send down bounty unto the widow and the fatherless.

The Examination of Commissioner Yeh.

The Moniteur de la Platte publishes the following report of an examination of Commissioner Yeh, on board the Inflexible, by an English officer, before the Mandarin in question sailed from Hong Kong for Calcutta. It is interesting. In answer to questions the ex Viceroy said 'I was born in the village of Kaoh-Tih, in the province of Ho-Nan. My father was a basket-maker, and eked out his income by trading in rice. We were fourteen children. At an early age I acquired a taste for reading, and whenever I had any money I expended it in the purchase of books. After a few years I was considered as a man of learning among the boys of my age, and when the Inspector General of Public Instruction who visited our province every five years came, I asked to be allowed to undergo an examination. My request was granted; I came into the schools with an elaborated commentary on the Ta-Hio, the great book of science of Confucius, and after three days' successive examinations I was appointed a 'literate' of the third class, and attached as tutor to the College of Khai-Fang, the chief town in the province. The Mandarin governor of Ho-Nan's attention was directed to me, and he chose me as Secretary. Two years later he was summoned to the capital, and took me with him. During my sojourn at Pekin I acquired the degree of literate of the second and of the first class. My patron died, but I had been noticed by the head of the Nuyko, in whose hands rested also the direction of the Emperor's Cabinet, and attained the office of Vice-President of the Hing-Pou, or Tribunal of Punishments.—I won no small distinction in the discharge of this office, and in two missions which I was subsequently entrusted with, I had the honor of being noticed by the sublime sovereign who rules over us. Finally, in 1847, I was associated with the very much regretted Houang-Nyang-Toung, who was then a prey to a terrible insurrection, which it was necessary to suppress. The insurgents burnt towns and villages, and slaughtered the inhabitants by thousands. It was necessary to stop them. The Vice-[illegible] quarter to the rebels, and was thus enabled to keep the insurrection within due bounds. He died in 1853, and I succeeded to him. I followed his example, and the rebellion gradually gave away.

The cruelties which he practiced having been alluded to, he said:—Hear me. One of the rebel chiefs was in the habit of having all the prisoners he took from us sawn between two planks. I informed him that I would use reprisals—his put to death in the same way—but he had previously had not less than six thousand men, many of them officers, sawn between two planks.

English Officer.—How many prisoners do you think you have executed?

Yeh.—About sixty thousand; but the rebels have slaughtered more than three hundred thousand.

English Officer.—You had many people put to death who had nothing to do with the insurrection?

Yeh.—Why, fancy. The province of Canton is a kind of refuge for all thieves and murderers in the empire who escape from justice. I saw that crimes were frequent, and, therefore, ordered frequent execution; but the people thus put to death were always thieves and murderers, who almost invariably confessed their crimes.

English Officer.—You don't seem to have been popular in the city.

Yeh.—I never discovered that I was unpopular. I know the people feared me, and kept quiet. The public peace in the city was never disturbed, trade prospered, and people grew rich. The Emperor, my immortal master, to reward me, had conferred upon me the title Wan-tzio, the highest of all, and had authorized me to take the surname of Ming-Chin. As to the reproach of having availed myself of my position to accumulate wealth, it is false. I am rich in dignities and titles, but poor in money. A great part of my income I send to my friends and relatives. In the village where I was born I have had a temple built at my own expense and have had several dwellings erected for poor families. My enemies are chiefly in the upper classes. They wish for my downfall in order to take my place.

It has been remarked that ladies have generally a great fear of lightning, and this has been superficially ascribed to their natural timidity; but the truth is that it arises from their consciousness of being attractive.

For washing fine and elegant colors, the Scientific American advises ladies to boil some bran in rain water, and use the liquor cold. Nothing can equal it for ease upon colors and cleaning cloth.

It is said that scraps of leather burned under a plum tree, when in full bloom, so that the smoke will go into the tree, will effectually kill the curculio insect which destroys the fruit.

Henry Bull, Attorney General.

This assembly was occupied with private business, except an act to pay the deputies 6s. per day, by their respective towns.

They met at Newport by adjournment, June 13, and again the 10th of August.—The last Wednesday in October they convened at Warwick, but nothing interesting

The town of Newport ordered a small house to be built at Coaster's Harbor, at some distance from the Hospital House, for the use of persons coming in from the sea, to be there accommodated till it was ascertained if they had the small pox or any other contageous disorder.

The assembly adjourned to and met again on the third Tuesday in June, at Newport.

An act passed for dividing the town of Kingstown into two parts to be called North and South Kingstown, each to have one assistant. The privileges of having one assistant chosen from each of the towns created by this act, appears to have been contrary to the charter, and constitution of the colony, as the assistants were to be chosen by general ticket; how could the assembly compel the freemen to vote for an inhabitant of one or two particular towns? But such was the act, and such has been the law and practice ever since.

The assembly met at Providence on the last Wednesday in October, 1723, which was adjourned to and met again at Providence on the last Tuesday in February 1723-3. At neither of said meetings was anything interesting transacted.

The General Assembly met at Newport on the 30th day of May 1723, present, the Governor, Dep. Gov. and Assistants, and the following named Deputies from the towns.

Newport Mercury.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 5, 1858.

REMOVAL.

THE MERCURY OFFICE having been removed from the old stand, to the 'Vase Building,' Northwest corner of Market square and Thames street, we shall be happy to see our friends there, and shall endeavor to serve them in all things as heretofore.

The Mercury Reading Room is well supplied with papers from various quarters and we shall also endeavor to make it a pleasant resort. Subscribers and strangers visiting the city are respectfully invited to visit us in our new and improved location.

The excitement in regard to the "British Outrages," is on the increase, and almost daily we have had fresh accounts of acts perpetrated by British Officers, similar to those already recorded—all of which go to show that American vessels found on the coast of Cuba and in the Gulf of Mexico, have been unceremoniously boarded by British vessels of war, searched and then released. In some cases the vessels thus unnecessarily detained have been fired into, and for no other reason than the supposed indifference to the presence of a man-of-war with her ensign flying. At first it was supposed that these unpleasant detentions were caused through an over-zealous spirit of opposition to the slave trade; but boarding officers have declared that the vessel they were visiting so unceremoniously was not suspected to be a slaver, and that their orders were to overhaul all vessels found in those waters. This has roused the spirit of the American people, and in hot haste many have desired to go forth and wipe out the insult at once; but we hope a calm view of the case will first be had, and then, if need be, there will be time enough to vindicate and protect our flag—From whatever source the officers of Her Majesty's squadron in the West Indies received their orders, we may feel confident that the British people in no way sympathize with or endorse the spirit that prompted such measures, and we may feel assured that when it is known at home that such a course has been pursued, the public will repudiate it.—The voice of the whole country will be loudly raised against every step that will bring to a close the present good feeling between the two countries, and no ministers can long hold their seats in opposition to the popular will. That the measure enunciated from the ministry, there can hardly be a doubt, and the New York Courier & Enquirer calls attention to the following curious coincidence:—

"The most extraordinary circumstances connected with the present outrages upon our merchantmen is their completely unexpected and abrupt opening. Not the slightest inkling had come from any quarter that the right of search was to be reasserted by England; and yet suddenly we hear from all quarters that our vessels are being boarded. The news comes upon us like a thunder-bolt from a clear sky. Now the present Derby Ministry acceded to power on the 23d of February last, and these aggressive demonstrations happen within three months afterwards.

Six years ago, in the same month of February, the same, or substantially the same, Derby Ministry took office. When about five months of their administration had elapsed, our people were suddenly astonished by tidings of seizure of American fishing vessels in the Bay of Fundy and neighborhood, where they had been for years prosecuting their business without the slightest molestation. Upon recovering somewhat from our surprise, we learned that the new Ministry had adopted a new policy in respect to the provisions of the fishery convention of 1818. Without any negotiation, or overture of negotiation, the Derby Ministry suddenly reverted to a construction of that treaty excluding our fishing vessels from the larger bays—a construction which we had always denied, and which the British government had never enforced, and had for years entirely acquiesced in. The suddenness and rudeness of this new movement at once excited most serious apprehensions, and Commodore Perry, at that time preparing to go to Japan, was forthwith ordered off with the steamship Mississippi to the North Eastern coasts; and it was through the moderation and discretion, aided by a similar spirit on the part of Admiral Seymour, that an end was put to further offensive operations, and the way prepared for the peaceful and satisfactory adjustment of the whole matter.

Between that time into the fishing grounds and the present foray into the Gulf, in respect to its sudden and apparently gratuitous character. It would seem as if the Early of Derby and the Earl of Malmesbury had a decided penchant for extemporized skirmishes."

We trust and believe that the present difficulties will be as satisfactorily settled as were the troubles growing out of the fishery question. But hot haste and threatening words will only fan a little ill-will into a flame.

In another quarter, however, we see troubles arising that cannot be quelled so easily, and the promise for the future is anything but flattering.—In Kansas there has been bloodshed between the rival parties, and the strife for precedence between the Free Soil and Pro-Slavery men is growing more and more bitter. The citizens of the Territory, as a body, have repudiated the Kansian bill, but there seems to be a determination on the part of its friends to enforce it, whether those who are to live under it like it or not. This has caused the present outbreak and loss of life, and it is these internal dissensions that we are to fear and dread more than any insult to our flag from abroad. We are strong enough to cope with any power on the earth, but we are not strong enough, and never can be, to bear up under civil commotions and a war of brother against brother.

We have a number of sudden deaths to record this week, the old and the young having been taken away with hardly a warning. The oldest we have already spoken of; the youngest was a lad of rare promise, and all who knew him lament his loss. He possessed many noble qualities that endeared him to his teachers, companions and most intimate connections; quick to learn, prompt to obey, gentle and confiding in his manners, he made friends on every hand, who, whilst watching with interest the expanding of a mind so full of generous impulses, have suddenly been called upon to resign him to the grave. The earth has closed over the form of WILLIE, but long will he be remembered by those who knew his worth and who have wept over his untimely fate.

An accident occurred on Thursday through the careless use of fire-arms. The particulars, as we learned them, are these. A son of Mr. HENRY E. UNDERWOOD was playing with other boys in the yard of Mr. STAFFORD, in Mill street, when a young woman pointed a double barreled gun at him.—The lad laughed, said he was not afraid, and told her to fire. She pulled the trigger, but the gun only snapped. Again he made some remark about her skill and told her to try once more or words to that effect, at the same time holding out his right hand. But this time the gun was discharged and the ball passed through the hand, severely shattering the bones.

On Sunday night at about twelve o'clock a fire broke out in a stable on Lovis street, owned by Mr. EDWIN J. SWAN, and occupied by Mr. WILLIAM DEAR. The building was entirely consumed, but the horses (four in number) were got out safely and turned loose, and the last seen of them that night was in some of the cross streets, where they were giving their undivided attention to the grassy banks, and with which they seemed perfectly contented. The building was insured for $600.

Mr. WEAVER, of the Atlantic House, has taken another decided step for the improvement of his well-known hotel—that of making a carriage drive to the east of the house, for the accommodation of those who wish to enter by a more retired way than the public entrance. The idea was happily conceived, and it has been handsomely carried out.

We understand that preparations are making to start the cotton mills in this place—the Perry, Touro and Newport Steam Factory. This will be cheering news for the many operatives who have so long been out of employ. The lead works will also soon be in active operation.

On Wednesday the anniversary of the Baptist Sunday School Association was held in the 2d Baptist Church in this city, and a friend, at our solicitation, has prepared the following report of the proceedings. We visited the vestry room that morning to witness the preparations for the collation. The tables were bountifully spread with everything that could tempt the eye and gratify the palate—all the free gift of friends of the cause, and a portion of the exercises of the day it was our privilege to listen to. But we did not intend to report it ourselves, and, therefore, give place to the account of the celebration:—

On last Wednesday, an immense number of people, some having arrived from Providence, Warren and Bristol in the steamer Canonicus, some having come by sail from over the bay and many of our own citizens, assembled at the 2d Baptist Church of this city, to celebrate the 18th anniversary of the R. I. Baptist Sunday School Convention. The exercises commenced about ten o'clock in the morning, the large house being crowded in every part, almost every foot of room, even in the aisles and around the pulpit being occupied, so that, we suppose, the audience numbered not less than thirteen or fourteen hundred. We observed that the church was decorated in a beautiful manner with evergreens and flowers; that back of the pulpit, of green interwoven with white blossoms, was the sacred symbol of our faith; and that, in various conspicuous places, were large and handsome bouquets and wreaths.

Prof. GREEN, the President, introduced the service of the day; after which Mr. GUILD, the Secretary, read the annual report. We noted down from it the following interesting statistics. There are 54 schools in connection with the convention, in which 776 officers, and 5,717 scholars. Of this number 1,486 are seventeen or more years of age. In the aggregate, 780 conversions were reported as having occurred during the year. After the report, the Superintendents of many of the schools communicated additional information.

At the close of the morning session, the convention partook of the bountiful and very elegant collation which had been prepared in the vestry.—This was the most sumptuous affair of the kind which we have ever seen. The room was beautifully ornamented with flowers and evergreen; and over the desk, in letters of evergreen, was the word WELCOME. The Pastor, in a few remarks, expressed the genuine happiness which his flock, with himself felt in seeing their friends from all parts of the State, assembled for the promotion of Sunday Schools, and extended to all a cordial and hearty welcome. The tables were laid with plates for seven hundred people, and graced with very rich profusion, as also ornamented by many vases of beautiful flowers. As the tables were set two or three times, we suppose that not less than sixteen or eighteen hundred persons partook of the refreshments. This part of the exercises especially reflected great credit upon the energy and liberality of that church, and upon the good taste of those who made such elegant arrangements. At the close of the collation, Mayor WM. B. CRANSTON, made some very interesting remarks concerning the benefit to the community of efficient schools, and the advantages to the young which spring from Sunday School training. He had observed, he said, in the execution of official duties, that those were most subject to temptation and crime who had not possessed such advantages.

At the afternoon session further reports were given from various schools, interesting speeches were made, various resolutions were passed, and an instructive and finished essay was read by Rev. Mr. CHASE, of Warren. About five o'clock the meeting adjourned, and the numerous delegates departed, undoubtedly in good humor with the very very generous hospitality which had been extended towards them, and stimulated to fresh exertion in behalf of morality and religion by the cheering facts, and the stirring speeches, of the day.

The hundreds and thousands of apple trees on this island are now in full blossom, and a more beautiful sight one could hardly expect to see.—The trees are covered with large pink and white flowers, and the air is exactly perfumed by them. May the yield be large and properly harvested.—Last year we had no fruit. In June, whilst the trees were still in flower, there came on a severe and cold storm from the East—just such a stormy season as we passed through last week—and when it passed over the sun came out very hot, and the consequence was the blossoms were all badly scalded. There was hardly a tree that escaped, and apples readily brought more for a bushel than was ever before asked for a barrel. The trees, as we have already remarked, never looked better than at present, and we hope the promise for abundance of food than good sound apples, and when they are scarce are greatly missed.

Mrs. STOCKBRIDGE makes an earnest appeal for the young, and especially for young girls, that they may have more of air and exercise—more of play and romp, and less of formal dress and studied manner, and her words we commend to all who can have any interest in the subject:—

"But I plead for the little girl, that she may have air and exercise as well as her brother, that she may not be too much blamed, if, in her earnest play, she happen to tear and soil her apron. I plead that she may not be punished as a romp, if she keenly enjoys those active sports which city gentility proscribes. I plead that the ambition to make her accomplished do not chain her to a piano till the spinal column, which should consolidate the frame, starts aside like a broken reed; nor bow her over the book till the vital energy, which ought to pervade the whole system, mounts into her brain and kindles the death fever."

Monday last Mr. A. J. HOPKINS gave an exhibition of his mode of horse-breaking, which was effectually done. A colt, not two years old, belonging to Mr. THOMAS WHAYEN, which had never been bitted, was so completely subdued, that in three hours time she was driven in a wagon, being as gentle as an old family horse. The horse was true grit and very unwilling to submit, but finally laid down or arose at Mr. HOPKINS bidding. A gong was beat over her head and a whiffle-tree thrown at her heels, but no symptoms of fear were shown. Mr. H. will probably give another exhibition during the summer.

TOWN OFFICERS IN LITTLE COMPTON.—At the Annual Meeting of the Town of Little Compton, on Monday last, the following officers were elected for the year ensuing:—

Town Clerk—Henry M. Tompkins.

Town Council—Nathaniel Church, Nathaniel Gifford, George Potter, Oliver C. Brownell, Benjamin Seabury.

Treasurer & Collector—Henry T. Brown.

Assessors—Lindall Simmons, Clark Brownell, Peleg Sanford.

This is the last time our paper will appear printed on these old type, and we shall appreciate the change quite as much as our readers. The change would have been made before, but we were anxious to don our new dress with the beginning of a new century, and so postponed the purchase of it for a few months; but our old one has rapidly grown very shabby and we are glad the time is come when we may consign it to the melting pot.

On Sunday, as three or four young ladies approached an equal number of young men drawn up on the sidewalk, they paused for a moment, then raised their skirts ankle high and picked their way through the pools of tobacco spit before them.—We thought for the moment that the reproof would be felt, but in this we were disappointed, for the saliva flowed as freely as before.

We regret to announce the sudden death of SAMUEL B. VERNON, Esq., who expired in this city on Saturday last. At dinner he was apparently perfectly well, and before night he was a corpse.—Mr. VERNON was widely known and highly respected, and his loss will be mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

It is stated that coal has been discovered in Canada, forty-two miles east of Toronto, and that there was great excitement in the town when the news was made known. We have a plenty of coal near us, but it would be difficult to get up an excitement over it.

It is intimated that the Atlantic telegraph, if successfully laid down, will be inadequate to the wants of the public, and that other lines will be required to assist in the work of transmitting news and other matter.

Forty three persons were baptized by Rev. Mr. CLARK, upon a profession of faith, in Portsmouth, at the "Glen" on Sunday of last week.

The large sign over our door, "Mercury Office," in "blue and gold," was carved by Captain SWAN, who is a genius in his way. The Captain has long been famous for his skill in carving, and in the work referred to he has displayed all his qualities in this line. He is always ready for an order and we hope that he may never lack employment for his hands and tools.

Our courteous and obliging Postmaster, we observe, has placed a neat and attractive desk in the vestibule of the post office, for the accommodation of all who may have occasion to direct a letter or write a few lines there. It was very thoughtful in him and the public will appreciate his attention to its wants.

The organization of the city government will take place in the Representatives' Hall at the State House, on Monday next, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The public are invited to attend; seats will be reserved for ladies.

LAYARD, the traveler, has expressed the opinion before a London audience that the troubles in India grew out of bad management on the part of the government, and this, probably, is the true state of the case.

During the week a number of families have arrived and have taken up their quarters with us for the season. Others are expected daily, and before the month runs out we may look for a large accession.

Mr. WILLIAM G. SEABURY has been appointed 3d Assistant of Engine Co. No. 3, vice B. H. TISDALE, Jr., deceased.

By telegraph we learn that a Vigilance Committee has been formed in New Orleans, who have secured arms, and a collision was expected with the local authorities.

OUR BOOK TABLE

UNDINE: A Tale of Country Life, by Miss SEWELL. D. Appleton & Co., New York; C. S. HAMMETT, Jr., Newport.—12vol, 18mo, pp. 200. Miss SEWELL is well known to the American public through her numerous works, among which are Amy Herbert, Ivor, &c. She writes with spirit and animation; her scenes are true to life, natural and attractive, and there is a warmth and a depth of feeling in all that comes from her pen, which secure and command the attention of the reader. The present work is no exception and we much mistake if the reader does not at once become interested in "Ursie" and follow her from her childish days, under the guidance of her brother Rogers, to the scene before the altar, which should close all good romances, according to the rule of the day. The whole is beautifully told and will add another to the laurels the author has already won.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE, for May, is received from Leonard Scott & Co. It opens with a continuation of the admirable papers on Food and Drink, followed by part XII of What Will He Do With It, a paper on the Antiquities of Kertch, a subject full of interest, and the more so as the discoveries brought to light during the war in the East, a paper on East Africa, the Mutiny, and other subjects. Belmont agent.

MERRY'S MUSEUM AND THE SCHOOLFELLOW, for June. This little work for the young is composed of short stories, sketches, poetry and the like, with illustrations—the whole being well calculated to interest the youthful mind.

THE HAPPY HOME for the current month closes the seventh volume of useful and desirable information collected under this head. Every number is embellished, and something of value can always be gleaned from its pages.

SABBATH-SCHOOL MONTHLY we have frequently had occasion to speak of in words of commendation. The June number is out and it will find a warm welcome with the little ones.

City Council.

NEWPORT, May 3, 1858.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN—Present His Honor the Mayor, and Aldermen STEVENS, SHERMAN, HOPKINS, Freeborn and WEAVER.

Resolved, That Alderman HOPKINS on the part of the Board, with such others as the Common Council may add, be a committee to make the necessary arrangements for the organization of the City Government for the municipal year commencing on Monday next. Passed.

Finance Report No. 28, recommending bills to the amount of $828.23, to be paid from City Treasury. Granted with the exception of the account of C. C. VanZandt.

Licence to keep a Junk Shop was granted to Riley & Kinsman.

Report of Street Commissioner stating that the fence at Beach (300 feet) had been completed.—Accepted and ordered on file.

Annual Report of various committees &c., Received and ordered on file.

After some preliminary remarks by Alderman WEAVER, the following preamble and resolutions were passed, Alderman STEVENS in the chair.

Whereas, It is meet that the political year now about to be closed, has industriously and ably devoted his time to the discharge of the duties of the office of Chief Magistrate of this city, of which our official position has necessarily made us witnesses that he has not only discharged the duties immediately devolving on his said office, but has discharged and aided in discharging many of the duties which might have well devolved upon other subordinate officers of the city, and whereas, we the Board of Aldermen of the city of Newport, believing it to be a duty incumbent upon us to bear our testimony in favor of the able and faithful discharge of the aforesaid duties by the said CRANSTON, do hereby publicly resolve that we highly appreciate the obligations we are under to him for the aid which we have received from him in the discharge of the duties devolving upon our offices, and that as citizens we heartily thank him for the able, industrious, faithful and impartial manner in which he has discharged the said duties, and that we sincerely believe that our fellow citizens are largely indebted to him for the comparative quietness from disorderly interruption, which they with us have enjoyed during his administration.

Resolved, Further that we tender him our best wishes for his success in life, which we hope will be a ways equal to his merits.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this Board be directed to cause these resolutions to be entered upon record, and to be published in the newspapers employed to do the city printing.

Mayor CRANSTON responded in a feeling manner to the Resolutions, stating that they were entirely unexpected to him, and after alluding to the circumstances of his election a year ago, his disinclination to accept the office at that time, the circumstances under which he finally became a candidate, the effort which he had made to administer the government firmly, conscientiously and impartially, &c., concluded by returning his sincere thanks to the Board of Aldermen and Common Council, for the united support which they had given him during the year, and attributing much of the success which there had been in his administration, to the constant and united aid which he had received from the City Council.

Communication from Common Council from F. W. Sprague. Ordered to be referred to the retiring members of the Common Council.

Adjourned to Monday, 2 P. M.

COMMON COUNCIL.—Present, R. J. Taylor, Esq., President, and Messrs. Crandall, Carr, Stevens, Coggeshall, Peckham, Townsend, and Hazard.

Adjourned to Monday, June 7, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M.

AN INTERESTING SIGHT.—Of fifteen persons baptized a few Sabbaths since, by Rev. Mr. Malcom of Newport, ten were heads of families; five husbands, accompanied by their wives passing into the water together.—Fall River News

The 2811th anniversary of the founding of Rome was celebrated by the Archæological Institute, on the 24th of April.

The national debt of Spain amounts to £140,000,000 sterling.

The U. S. mail steamer Moses Taylor, from Aspinwall May 20th arrived at New York on Saturday 29th, with 560 passengers, and $1,875,991, in Treasure.

The Pacific Co's steamer Golden Gate, left San Francisco May 5, and same day when about 45 miles out broke her centre shaft, and returned to San Francisco on the 6th, and transferred her passengers and treasure to the Sonora, which sailed on the 7th.

The California news possesses considerable general interest.

The weather had been delightful, and farmers were anticipating heavy crops. Mining operations were brisk and profitable.

The Legislature adjourned after a four months session on the 26th of April. Among other laws enacted was one prohibiting the emigration of Chinese and Mongolians into California from and after October next. There was much opposition to this law as conflicting with treaties of the U. S. but it was sustained by the masses on the ground of the necessity.

Col. Fremont arrived at Bear Valley, Mariposa Co. April 14th, and was welcomed with the greatest public rejoicing.

In San Francisco a large sale of real estate was effected on the 21st of April, by H. A. Cobb, consisting of 65 lots in various parts of the city, comprising part of the estate of W. H. Palmer, of the late firm of Palmer and Co. The lots were purchased by S. Hydenfeldt, and two or three other individuals at medium prices.

Sixteen thousand dollars in specie of the plunder which had been buried at Cape St. Lucas by the captain and mate of the brig Cornelia previous to their scuttling the vessel, had been recovered by the police and brought to San Francisco on the 20th of March.

The old ship Zenobia formerly of Baltimore, drifted ashore on the North Head at the entrance of the harbor of San Francisco on the 30th April, and was a total loss. She was from Sitka, loaded with ice. No insurance.

The colored people were making their exodus from San Francisco. At a large meeting on Monday evening May 10th at Zion church, the subject of their proposed emigration was further discussed. It was found that sixty five persons had enrolled themselves as emigrants and would take passage for Vancouver's on the steamer Commodore, to leave the next day. Instructions were given them to purchase as much land as possible at Vancouver's island, with a view to a permanent settlement, under the British protection. The 68 emigrants sailed on the 20th, and should the attempt to make a settlement at Vancouver's island prove abortive, an attempt will be made in the direction of Sonora, Mexico. The Alta California remarks:—"This is an important epoch for this class of our inhabitants, and reminds us of the Pilgrims, and the address of pastor Robinson, when these adventurers embarked for their Western homes across the seas."

The steamer Uncle Sam had been libelled by by 136 passengers claiming damages, $2000 each, or $114,000 in all, for a failure to convey them to New York as per contract in April, 1856. They allege that instead of being taken to San Juan del Sur they were conveyed to Panama, and left on the Isthmus seventeen days without accommodation or proper food!

The schooner Palestine returned from a guano exploring on the 22d of April, and reported having discovered a guano island on the track between the Sandwich and Bandrone Islands, containing over a million tons of guano. The proprietary interest has been secured, and arrangements are made to send vessels there to load.

Accounts from Fraser's river, in the British possessions, confirm the reported gold discoveries in that region. Several steamships loaded with miners have started, and the rush is increasing.

Of the "religious movement" the Bulletin says, it is not to be supposed that California can be behind the rest of the world in any great work.—Sinners, suddenly aroused to the enormity of their offences against God, are beginning to stir here just as their brethen have been moving for some time at the East. Morning and evening prayer meetings and general outpourings of the spirit are now being held daily in Sacramento, as has been the case for some time in this city.

THE BOURBON QUESTION—NEW LIGHT—MORE MYSTERY.—The Rev. Mr. WILLIAMS, who claims to have a valid title to the throne of France, was in this city last week. Within the past few days old cash books belonging to B. & J. R. Bleecker, and extending from the year 1792 to 1802, have been examined and a large number of interesting entries found therein.

In a letter written a few months ago by Mrs. Blanding Dudley, it is reduced almost to a certainty that a son of the King of France was in this city in 1793, in company with one D'Jourdin, formerly an attache of the French Court. Mrs. Dudley concludes her letter by saying that she could referred to after they left Albany. The old books of B. & J. R. Bleecker prove that D'Jourdin, after leaving Albany went to Whitehall or Fort Edward, where he remained for some time. According to the cash book spoken of, B. & J. R. Bleecker on the 11th of February, took up a note for D'Jourdin for £187 8s. 6d. Dec. 18th, 1802, they took up his note for £155 0s. 4d. April 6, 1803, James Bleecker paid Peter D'Jourdin on a mortgage £328 9s. 6d. There are also many other charges on the books—the whole showing that B. & J. R. Bleecker acted as bankers for D'Jourdin. We understand that the Rev. Mr. Williams can prove that he is the boy who was with D'Jourdin at Whitehall or Fort Edward. If he can prove this, we conclude he is the same boy he had with him in Albany, and as Mrs. Dudley has always believed that the boy which D'Jourdin had with him in Albany was the son of a King of France, the evidence becomes quite strong that the Rev. Mr. Williams is the lost "Dauphin" after all, and by right of birth King of France.

The old books belonging to B. & J. R. Bleecker have opened a new mine of exceeding interest. We hope it will be properly worked, and all the facts connected with them brought to bear upon a mystery which has long agitated the literary and historical world. The books can be seen by calling at Mrs. Dudley's.

Albany Knickerbocker.

LORD NAPIER AND THE BRITISH CRUISERS.—Lord Napier is understood to emphatically disclaim having had any knowledge whatever of the obnoxious proceedings in the gulf of Mexico, and to express the belief that the Ministry were equally ignorant of the movements which have created so much sensation over the country. When this matter first became the topic of newspaper comment, he immediately addressed the admiral on the station, enclosing the criticisms, and urging prompt and decided measures for arresting every such cause of complaint. From this fact, which is undoubted, it is supposed no special orders were issued authorizing the offensive acts of visitation, and that it was undertaken with indiscreet zeal by the commanding officer who thus hopes to signalize his consequence by superior efforts. In this view of the case, there will be no difficulty in the way of an explicit disavowal by Lord Malmesbury, and such other proper reparation as the nature of the case may seem to require. The President confidently expresses such conviction, founded upon information not entirely accessable to the public.

MONEY FOR POSTAGE.—We have seen some complaints in the newspapers, that cents are refused by postmasters in payment for stamps on postage. We do not know in what sums they have been offered, but every United States officer is obliged to take them for amounts less than ten cents; three-cent pieces are legal tender for debts under thirty cents; and the other coins less than one dollar, for debts of $5 or less. Such officers can of course refuse any of these coins, if offered in large sums.

MORMONISM PUNISHED.—North Carolina is a bad State to indulge in more than one wife. At the Cumberland Supreme Court last week H. V. Bartlett, convicted of bigamy, was to be branded on the left cheek with the letter B, to receive 30 lashes on his bare back, to be imprisoned 30 days and then to receive 39 lashes more, and to be let loose. He had married four wives.

HON. CHARLES C. VAN ZANDT, of Newport, Speaker of the House of Representatives, has accepted an invitation to deliver the poem before the literary societies of Brown University at the next annual Commencement.

Providence Journal.

A young man named Dunn has accomplished the feat of picking up, one at a time, one hundred potatoes placed three feet apart and putting them into a basket at the end of the string in the short space of 42 minutes. This, we believe, is the quickest time ever made, by two minutes and ten seconds.

The Baltimore Daily Exchange says the steamers from the South are going to New York more crowded than ever. They seem to have an impression that the season is to be a sickly one along the gulf coast, and hence the stampede North.

The company who own the "Leviathan" are about to issue preferred shares to the amount of £172,000 to complete her works. This will make the total cost of the vessel £804,202—about four millions of dollars.

LARGE AMOUNT.—Rev. Dr. Nelson reports $101,800 as the amount collected for missionary purposes last year, within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.

ROOFING! ROOFING!!

MASTIC ROOFING.

E. P. RUSSELL'S PATENT.

The public are aware that it has been the study of scientific men, architects and builders for many years to discover an article for roofing purposes that will withstand the sudden changes incident to this climate, be impervious to water, and a sure protection against fire. The inventor of this roofing labored many years to combine articles which would answer the above purposes, and obviate the difficulties of rust and decay attendant upon tin and shingles, and the desideration by the eye and feel of the various compositions used for roofing. This he succeeded in doing, and now after six years of the severest trial we would invite the careful attention of all interested in such matters, believing that they will be fully convinced of its practical value both for durability and cheapness, in which respects we believe that its equal is not at present known. This roofing can readily be applied to roofs of every description, either steep or flat, and can be put on over shingles or tin as much less expense than the first, and at half the cost of the latter. Two coats of the mastic put on over an old tin roof will make it as good as new at one fifth of the cost. In preparing this roofing a heavy drilling or canvass is used, which is thoroughly saturated with a perfectly water proof preparation, after which it receives a thick coating, upon both sides of the four of canvass, which sets into the texture of the canvass, and gives it a firm body, making it very elastic and durable. After this canvass as prepared is put upon the roof, another coating of mastic which is thoroughly filled with sand is given it, making it fire proof in every respect. By exposure this coating becomes firm and solid, giving you a roof that can be walked upon with perfect impunity, and as durable as anything known; and we do most candidly and unhesitatingly believe, far superior to anything of the kind yet discovered; and after a severe test of many years, stands as reliable as if good as when first put on, without charge or decay. All we ask is, that a careful examination may be given it, and we feel convinced that it will bear all the recommendation which we offer of it. Annexed we give you the names of some of the many persons using this roofing, and to whom we are at liberty to refer:

Wolfe's Celebrated Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.

This medicinal beverage is manufactured by the proprietor, at Schiedam, Holland, expressly for medicinal use, by a process peculiar to his own Factory. It is the pure Tincture of the Italian Juniper Berry, whose more virtuous extract is distilled and rectified with its spiritous solvent, which thus becomes a concentrated tincture of exquisite flavor and aroma, altogether, transcendent in its cordial and medicinal properties to any alcoholic stimulant now made in the world. It is now prescribed by more than 5,000 physicians in the United States, in cases of Gravel, Gout, Dropsy, Bladder and Kidney Complaints.

Put up in Quart and Pint Bottles, in cases of one dozen qts, and cases of two dozen pts, and for sale by all the Druggists and Country Merchants.
